

What is a Universal Tennis Rating (UTR)?

A Universal Tennis Rating® (UTR) is a number, between 1.00 and 16.50, that indicates a player's level of play.

How often are the ratings updated?

Results are imported into our system on a weekly basis and the updated ratings are published to the site the following morning.

How are UTRs calculated?

UTRs are result-based & are calculated using the last 30* matches within the last year. The main factors are percentage of games won and opponent's rating.

How do I raise my UTR?

The best way to improve your UTR is to compete on a regular basis especially against players who are close to your level and try to win as many games as possible in every single match.

How can my rating change, even if I haven't played recently?

The ratings on our site are very dynamic since they are recalculated every day. So even if you haven't played any matches recently, it can change based on changes in the ratings of your recent opponents. Moreover, since our system only takes a player's last 30 matches played within the last 12 months, your rating can change as some of those scores start getting excluded since they no longer fall within that time frame.
